

MRS. CARRINGTON MASON IS DEAD

Pioneer Woman Leader in Social and Church Circles Paralysis Victim.

Suffering a stroke of paralysis last Friday, just one week following the celebration of her 75th birthday, Mrs. Carrington Mason, for years well known here in church and woman's club circles, succumbed Sunday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. D. Lloyd, in Newville, Miss.

News of Mrs. Mason's death reached Memphis Sunday in a telegram to her son, Alfred O. Mason, former city commissioner. Another son, L. Y. Mason, and a second daughter, Mrs. H. D. Lloyd, of Boston, were also notified.

Monday morning funeral arrangements had been made, according to the wishes of Mrs. Mason, to be held at 10 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. D. Lloyd, in Newville, Miss.

Mrs. Mason lived in Memphis from 1850 until May, 1915, when she moved to Newville to reside with her daughter. She was married in Nashville, and was a native of Sumner county, Tennessee.

It was through Mrs. Mason's activities that the Masonic library museum was founded and has reached such a point of excellence as to stand it out as the best in the South.

Mrs. Mason's indefatigable efforts for the collection of Indian mound relics, the first of which she secured, were the first of many which she has since secured.

Also active in church work, Mrs. Mason was for 50 years a devoted member of the Second Presbyterian church. The Woman's Christian association was conceived by Mrs. Mason and several other ladies. Also she was active in U. S. C. circles for several years, serving as president of the Sarah Lawrence chapter here.

The feature of the game was the good work of Emory Montgomery in placing the ball in the basket. He had good support from the entire team, however. There was a good number of witnesses present. For next Saturday the local team will play Greenwood in this city. On a date following soon thereafter the local team will meet the Port Morgan team.

Amusements

Legion Minstrels.

The opening attraction at the New Lyric theater following the lifting of the ban on account of the fire, will be the American Legion minstrels Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

The usual of any traveling attraction in dancing and first part to say nothing of the features of the club is the promise of Guy Bowen, and Al G. Field, end man, who is staging the performance.

No less person than Bert Swart, America's foremost delineator of negro comedy, dropped in Sunday en route from Jackson, Tenn., to Hot Springs, Ark., with Noll O'Brien's minstrels. He attended the rehearsal of the minstrel show Sunday afternoon.

"Boys, he said after the rehearsal, 'Your first part is as good as we have with the O'Brien show and the end of it out the superior of the Al G. Field show. You can quote me as saying this.'"

The performance has been in rehearsal for several weeks, the rough spots have all been ironed out and a finished performance with a professional touch is certain.

The program entitled by The Daily News, is just off the press and is a thing of beauty. The program will follow in detail that recently published in these columns.

A street parade Tuesday noon will be a feature. Starting from the theater it will move west on Madison to Second street, north on Second to Adams avenue, west on Adams avenue to Main, south on Main to Linden avenue, back Main street to Madison, thence east to theater.

Demand for seats has been heavy, but they are still some good ones to be had for both Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

Orpheum.

Monday marks the reopening of the popular playhouse after being closed for three weeks and also marks the reappearance of Gertrude Hoffman. Miss Hoffman will be the headliner of the week's bill which promises to be one that will satisfy all Memphis theatergoers. Miss Hoffman is an individual who occupies a class quite by herself. She does any number of things better than most artists are capable of doing them and she does so many things that she would be nearly capable of giving a decidedly diversified Louisville bill by herself. This season Miss Hoffman is seen in a series of dances and impersonations with special stage settings and an augmented orchestra.

Mrs. Gertrude Hoffman has a one-act comedy playlet, "When He Came Back," written by Edgar Allan Poe and humorously announced the next act. Those who remember Jim Morton as a monomaniac know just how funny he is, but as a story teller he never managed to excite nearly as much fun as he does in his new capacity.

Collins and Hart have a delightful burlesque on the feats and idiosyncrasies common among athletes. Bill Fawcett and Edna Leake in "Seven A. M." have a delightful little comedy written by Jack Lait. Joe Laurio is a monomaniac second to none, he but comes most comical.

Walter Ward and Ethel Dooley in "Our Ideas" have a most versatile offering consisting of singing, dancing, bicycling and a wonderful exhibition of hand throwing. Tonics of the Day and Kinegrams complete the show that should please the most exacting.

Loew's Lyceum.

With the flu epidemic zone, Loew's Lyceum reopens Monday with an exceptionally well-balanced vaudeville program.

The headliner is Homer Lind & Co., with Adah Currie Lind, in their classic, "The Singing Teacher." Lind first sprang into prominence when he scored a great triumph with Homer W. Savage's "Parsifal" company, the famous Chicago organization. It was also the harbinger of the Metropolitan Opera Co. for many months. It is his present offering, he is assisted by Miss Lind, who is a finished violinist. He is a favorite here.

Four other Marcus Loew acts and "The Walk-Offs," a film feature starring May Allison, will be included in the bill. "The Walk-Offs" was originally produced on Broadway by Oliver Morosco. It is a live-wire divorce comedy, full of smiles and just a little comedy.

Moving Pictures

Strand.

Marguerite Clark in her latest comedy comedy "All of a Sudden Doan's" will be the attraction at the Strand theater for the remainder of this week. The first showing being Monday afternoon. Miss Clark in this picture which is said to be the most delightful of her career portrays a young and charming society girl who is in love. But in order to win her husband, she is faced with the task of marrying off her mother. Love, she does this and the incident which entails several years, make this a suitably comedy from beginning to end. The added feature will be Mack Sennett's comedy, "Back to the Kitchen."

Majestic.

The best loved work of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, the famous poet, will be shown on the screen, today. "The Song of Hiawatha" is a beautiful picture, with many scenes of the life of the poet, will open at the Majestic theater this afternoon for three days. "Hiawatha" is not only in America, but all over the world and within a few years was translated into every civilized tongue.

A comparable success is predicted for the film version as it gathers most admirably for Longfellow's exquisite dramatic poem in addition to being the most beautiful of all motion picture productions.

Princess.

Tommy Mey and Douglas Maude, the two Thomas H. Ince stars, who created a big following here a few weeks ago when they made their first appearance in "Twenty-Three" and "The Girl Who Came to Stay," will be featured in the Princess theater today and Tuesday in the same play. This is a production of Mary Roberts Rinehart's comedy, which was read by millions in a leading national publication. The situations of the play and the comedy are of the type that produces a laugh per foot of film.
